Stag Beetle News

News!

Stag beetle season has started

The first stag beetles have been seen during the last weeks in UK and Portugal. Other regions will probably follow soon. So it is time to start up the transects again.

Stag beetle data on the move

In our previous news letter we mentioned that the data centre of our stag beetle transects would be moved to a prebuild database to allow an admin section. IT specialist are still working on this so for the moment the website is still the same system.

European stag beetle night

We found only a few people interested in organising something and we need at least a few countries before we can call it a European event. Therefore, we will not organise the European stag beetle night this year but maybe we can retake the idea within a couple of years. Nevertheless, you can still organise things locally.
